THE CRYSTAL SHIP

In a forgotten corner of a distant galaxy, a crystal escape pod drifts through space. Inside this escape pod is the beautiful Princess Sky, who has spent the last thousand years frozen in time. When King Axor hears the tragic tale of her life from a mysterious stranger at his birthday party, he vows to rescue her. He can't search for her himself because of the demands of his kingdom, so he decides to hold a contest to find a champion. A lowly farmer's son called Tik hears about the contest and is determined to be the one the king chooses. The only thing that stands in his way is a fearsome robot dragon. Can Tik defeat this dragon and prove his worth to the king? If so, what strange adventures await him in the void of space? Find out in this action-packed science fiction adventure from the pen of C.J.

Carter-Stephenson. Featuring original artwork by up-and-coming artist Mauro Vargas, whose talent for mixing humour and drama perfectly complements the text and brings the characters vividly to life.

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

C.J. Carter-Stephenson was born in the county of Essex in the U.K. and attended King Edward VI Grammar School from the ages of 11 to 18. In 1998, he graduated from De Montfort University with a BA (Hons) in English and Performing Arts, and in 1999, obtained a postgraduate diploma in Acting from the Academy of Live & Recorded Arts. Although The Crystal Ship is his debut novel, he has had two plays published, and his work has appeared extensively in the small press. He currently lives on the Isle of Wight with his common-law wife.
